Investing in Human Wellbeing and the Planet

Sustainable and Responsible
Investment Conference (SRI) 2024

Programme Overview

SRI 2024 encapsulates the imperative of global unity in prioritising sustainable investments for human wellbeing and the planet amidst escalating environmental challenges. It underscores the sobering reality revealed by COP28 that current efforts are insufficient to limit global warming to 1.5°C, necessitating immediate action. Malaysia has witnessed a significant surge in sustainable investments driven by supportive policy frameworks and initiatives like the SRI Roadmap and SRI Taxonomy. The introduction of the Maqasid Al-Shariah Guidance further fortifies Malaysia's commitment to sustainability, highlighting the crucial role of mobilising funds for human wellbeing and environmental preservation.

The conference aims to delve into critical evaluations, innovative perspectives and transformative solutions for a sustainable future. It emphasises the intrinsic nature of sustainability and the urgent need for climate action through the mobilisation of funds. By convening industry players, policymakers, business leaders and stakeholders, the event seeks to facilitate dialogue, identify shortcomings and strategise actionable steps to bolster the nation's commitment to sustainability. Through fostering discussions and partnerships, it endeavours to empower stakeholders to play a pivotal role in global efforts to mitigate climate change, identify investment opportunities for a sustainable future and secure a healthier planet for present and future generations.
